Here's a hint for saving food for long periods of time when space is limited; plus it takes less energy to preserve it. After filling my freezer and my canning jars [energy & work intensive]; I bought a large dedhydrator as my garden was still producing. This can also be cost effective when you buy food in bulk from sales or farmer's markets. Uses very little electricity & you can store food for long periods of time with no additional energy expended. Just need water to rehydrate.]]> <https://www.oathkeepers.org/how-much-interest-has-your-food-bank-earned-this-year/#comment-207> Tue, 18 Nov 2014 06:07:07 +0000 <https://www.oathkeepers.org/how-much-interest-has-your-food-bank-earned-this-year/#comment-207>
