

▣ CLICK HERE FOR ADVERTISEMENT RATES

0 0 0 0

by Elias Alias , April 19, 2015

Liberty Bros

Liberty Brothers Radio On Scene At Sugar Pine Mine In Oregon

Some un-American Americans just don't get it.

OMG! they shriek — these miners would dare oppose federal authority— OMG!

Contrary to the intent of this nation's founders, some people advocate blindly following whatever statute the force of government declares to be "the law". Some people do not see any value in questioning authority. Right here in America, to this day, exist some people who think the government did nothing wrong when it burned to death over eighty men, women, and children at Waco, Texas over an illegal "law" regarding guns. The idiotic zealots of the ATF and FBI and elements of the U.S. military totally failed to read the Second Amendment of the highest law of the land, which clearly notes that any law about guns proffered since the Second Amendment was ratified is an "infringement" of the very law they swore an Oath to protect and defend. Did I make myself clear? Let me repeat — the Constitution forbids any restrictions about any arms We The People can bear. It does not make exceptions regarding how many bullets-per-minute a gun can fire, or how long or short a gun barrel must or must not be. It simply says, "...shall not be infringed." Yet the ATF had a problem with the Constitution and murdered more than eighty church members in a fiery death with rampant gruesome cruelty. They even shot those who tried to run out of the burning church to escape the fire.

So the ATF and FBI revealed why unchecked government "authority" was prohibited by our Constitution's authors and the several States which ratified it. And yet some Americans to this day insist that We The People are not to question authority.

Even now there is an Internet chorus of lame-brained quasi-Americans who are spreading lies about the Oath Keepers who are standing to protect property rights for some miners in Oregon. I will not link those here because they don't deserve the clicks, but I can tell you that some of the rumors are very nasty, and some even wish death upon the Oath Keepers who are helping protect lawful property rights from an insane government mechanism called the "BLM". They are pumping outright lies and vicious rumors onto the Internet, and have the gall to accuse Oath Keepers of violating "the law" by standing up for the miners' property rights and for the right to due process.

Authority-worshipping statists are falsely declaring that the Oath Keepers are not welcome there at the mines, and that the Oath Keepers are a private militia of sorts who operate outside the "law", and that the Oath Keepers are "anti-government" — and worse. These cretins maintain that Americans must blindly follow every statute put on the books, whether a statute is pursuant to the Constitution or not, and never question "authority". If the God-Almighty Government (GAG) says something, then it's the By-God truth and anyone who questions it is "anti-government". That is the progressive statist mindset. And that particular mindset is now making up lies about Oath Keepers.

Lies about Oath Keepers have been with us since April 19, 2009, when Oath Keepers held its first muster at Lexington Green, Massachusetts. Yet Oath Keepers continues to serve the Liberty movement in America to this day, on our sixth anniversary as an organization. So let's celebrate the dawn of year seven by enjoying a timely dose of truth. Let's hear the truth from the mine owner who invited Oath Keepers to come help him save his mine from BLM encroachment.

Oath Keepers would like to thank The Liberty Brothers Radio staff for bringing the truth about Oath Keepers at Oregon's Sugar Pine Mine to America. From their website I have lifted their interview with Rick Barclay, owner of the Sugar Pine Mine. You can read the article by Jason Van Tatenhove of The Liberty Brothers Radio staff, who went there "boots on the ground" to film this interview. Link for Jason's article: [editing in on April 20 2015 Jason's text from this link, below, in the update section of this article.]

<http://thelibertybrothers.com/government-over-reach/a-new-oath-keepers-standoff-with-the-blm-not-quite/>

Give 'em some clicks, eh? Thank you.

Here is a note from Jim White, the other Liberty Brother at his and Jason's radio show:

Jim White speaking: Here is a link to our update page below. There, you can also listen to an interview with Oath Keepers Public Information Officer, Mary Eckert on the morning of 4.17, and audio from The Liberty Brothers Radio Show when Jason first arrived on the scene.

<http://thelibertybrothers.com/sugar-pine-mine/>

Stay tuned to The Liberty Brothers Radio Show and <http://thelibertybrothers.com> for up to the minute reports.

UPDATING APRIL 20 2015:

The original article for the video above is at The Liberty Brothers Radio Show. Catch it at this link:

<http://thelibertybrothers.com/government-over-reach/a-new-oath-keepers-standoff-with-the-blm-not-quite/>

A New Oath Keepers Standoff with the BLM? Not quite...

Posted [at The Liberty Brothers Radio website] on April 18, 2015 by Jim White
By Jason Van Tatenhove

I started hearing about this new "Bundy Ranch" styled standoff in Oregon with the BLM last Sunday. I thought the timing was rather ironic that close to a year after the incident in Nevada, a new incident would be developing in the mountains of Southern Oregon.

Much like at Bundy Ranch, I knew I needed to get out there boots on the ground and do my part to get good information out as to what is really going on. I arrived on scene yesterday, and was impressed from the start as to how the Oath Keepers were handling the situation.

There were lessons from Bundy Ranch that we, as a Patriot Movement, needed to learn; and it seems that we really have done our homework. Everybody is being vetted to make sure that there is no “fringe elements” looking to stir things up and spur violence. They have teams in place to cover everything from security, to COMS, to medical.

This operation is very clearly falling under the command of the local Josephine County Oath Keepers. There are also members of the 3% community and the groups seem to be working together like a well-oiled machine. The coalition of Western States is also bringing their weight to the table as well.

I cannot, for obvious reasons, go into operational security details; but, I can say that the mine is very safe at this point in time. There, as always, is a massive amount of dis-information regarding this situation. To dispel any aforementioned dis-info, we have produced a Liberty Brothers Radio Show exclusive video with Rick Barclay, The Owner of the Sugar Pine Mine, telling us in his own words what exactly is happening up to this point.

Please Share this.

Jason Van Tatenhove, The Liberty Brothers Radio

What the Bleep? Eh?

Categories: All, CPT - Security, CPT-Security-Videos, Featured

Tags: Josephine County Oath Keepers, Liberty Brothers Radio, Property Rights, Sugar Pine Mine

Comments

Write a Comment

Your e-mail address will not be published.

Required fields are marked *

Comment*