

M O N D A Y , A P I

Active Duty Serviceman Gives His Promise to the American People

I'm on active duty, and I do not need to be reminded of my oath.

I took it of sound mind and without reservation. I fully understand what it may entail. The domestic enemies of the United States will never be its people. It is infinitely more likely that it will be its government, since only powerful institutions and the government itself have a vested interest in attacking, perverting, and circumventing the U.S. Constitution.

No unconstitutional order shall be obeyed by myself or those under my authority as long as I am able to resist. I'm confident that the U.S. Military is full of individuals similar in mind and resolve as myself.

We are the Armed Forces of the Republic, and not a tool for oppression.

I can only offer the American people this solemn promise: I would die before I become their enemy.

POSTED BY OATH KEEPERS AT 12:46 PM

LABELS: ARMED FORCES, REPUBLIC, SOLEMN PROMISE

Newer Post

Home

Older Post

Subscribe to: Post Comments \(Atom\)